Many teachers who did receive basic training have not been provided in-service training on a regular basis. One of PSEDC's roles is to provide training programs for these teachers.

There is no effective government mechanism in place to educate pre school aged children. As a result, in April 2004, TRO formulated a provincial policy for Early Childhood Development through PSEDC throughout the NorthEast. A grass root structure was created and is functioning in all districts and in all communities in the NorthEast.

Partners:

The following International NGOs & Local NGOs currently participate in PSEDC: UNICEF, SCiSL, FORUT, World Vision, ZOA, IOM, DRC, Oxfam, World Food Program, Sarvodaya and NRC. Religious institutions also participate in PSEDC: HUDEEC, CSI, Methodist church, Anglican Church, Valvuthayam, EHED. Many of the Hindu Temple Associations, Islamic Organizations, and Buddhist Organizations are involved in various ECD activities and work in partnership with PSEDC.

Linking Communities:

Pre school structure is an entry point for social change and progress. PSEDC serves as a bridge between pre school activities and the society. This link-up is done at Pre School, community, divisional, zonal, district and provincial levels. In this structure the village community, pre school children's parents, teachers, representatives of pre school administering organizations, the education department, the college of education, the teachers' training colleges, the Jaffna and Eastern Universities, local government departments, cooperative departments, the Health Department and the Provincial Ministry of Education are all play a vital role and their interaction is coordinated by TRO and PSEDC

Reconciliation

From the grass roots village level to provincial level PSEDC structure cuts through community barriers and lays the foundation for reconciliation and bridge building between the different communities in conflict. This structure represents all ethnic and religious communities on an equal basis and paves the way for the representatives of different communities to participate in discussions, decision making, planning, curriculum formulation and finding amicable solutions to problems through dialogue. PSEDC structure and activities provide the base for better understanding and stronger relationships between different communities and reinforces the respect of human rights.

Mr. Ganeshalingam's team was travelling through Batticaloa district to gather data for the progress reports for the TRO/PSEDC permanent and temporary tsunami pre schools and temporary libraries funded by Save the Children in Sri Lanka (SCiSL) and the Norwegian Refugee Council (NRC) when they were abducted.
